ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR OPENING OF 3 SCHOOLS, SEPT. 4

Bristol Public, St. Ann's Parochial and Hulmeville Public Schools to Get Under Way

THE TEACHING STAFFS

Assignment of Teachers Made Public for The Bristol Schools

Definite plans and arrangements have been completed for the opening of the public schools in Bristol and Hulmeville boroughs, and St. Ann's parochial school in Bristol.

The students of the Bristol junior high school will have what is known as a "stagger" day. Sections 9-1, 9-2, 9-3, 8-1, 8-2, 8-3, and 7-2 will convene at 8.30 a. m., and be dismissed at 2.30 p. m. Sections 9-4, 9-5, 9-6, 8-4, 8-5, and 7-1, will convene between 9.30 and 9.45 a. m., and be dismissed at 2.30 p. m. This arrangement will do away with a study period for these sections. The stagger day is made necessary by dispensing with the services of four teachers under the economy plan of the board.

All new students as well as all students entering or repeating ninth grade are to register on Tuesday, September 4th.

Due to an error in the announcement concerning the opening of school, pupils who were in school last year were notified to report Tuesday, September 4th. Anyone inquiring as to re-examinations will be informed on Wednesday morning. All pupils in ninth grade will register in room 208. Those in charge of registration will be Miss Marion E. Peck, Miss Margaret Neill, and Miss Margaret Pope. New pupils entering grades 10, 11, or 12, will register in the office of Mr. Snyder. All re-examinations will be given in the afternoon beginning Wednesday, September 5th, and extending to the end of the week if necessary. When there is more than one re-examination to be taken priority is to be given in the following order: English, mathematics, social science, languages, sciences, commercial subjects, and all others.

Classes will go into session Wednesday, September 5th, for half a day, and the half-day sessions will continue for the balance of the week. The full-day sessions will begin September 10th, on which day the cafeteria will be opened for the season. High school principal Warren P. Snyder has arranged a series of lectures and entertainments which will be scheduled once a month for eight months, and will be given in the assembly. This program is in lieu of the programs which were given in other years by the students working under the direction of music and dramatic instructors. The course is to be by the Antrim Bureau of Philadelphia, and the first one will be given October 14th. There will be a magician, lectures, one of Bruce Barton's plays, instrumental music, nature talk, and impersonations of famous characters. There will be a general teachers' meeting of the junior and senior high schools on September 4th, at 11 a. m., in room 208.

The school calendar calls for sessions on 192 days, as follows:

September, 19 days, schools open Tuesday, September 4. October, 22 days, schools close 1 day, Friday, October 19, to allow the teachers to visit schools in other communities. November, 21 days, Thanksgiving—schools close Wednesday, November 28, at 12 M. noon, and reopen Monday, December 3. December, 15 days, Christmas—schools close Friday, December 21, at 3.30 p. m., and reopen Wednesday, January 2. January, 21 days, New Year's—schools open after Christmas vacation, Wednesday, January 2. February, 19 days, Washington's birthday—schools close Friday, February 22. March, 21 days, full month, no holidays. April, 17 days, Schoolmen's Week—teachers visit the University of Pennsylvania on Thursday and Friday, April 4 and 5; Easter holidays—schools close Wednesday, April 17, at 3.30 p. m., and reopen Tuesday, April 23, at 9 o'clock. May, 22 days, Memorial Day—schools close Thursday, May 30, June, 15 days, schools close Friday, June 21.

The following will be the personnel of the teaching staff in the senior high, junior high, and grades:

High school—Miss Rachel Bartine, English; Paul D. Brown, commercial; William E. Dougherty, health education for boys; Miss Margaret Pope, health education for girls. Miss Gertrude Murphy, of Bristol, will replace Miss Cecelia Garigues, as instructor in French, the latter having resigned. David L. Hertzler will teach science; Miss Gladys E. Hewitt, English; Miss Madelyn Kennedy, history. Thomas Coles will be the commercial instructor in place of Miss Grace L. King. Mr. Coles comes from Niconisco. John Burris of Philadelphia will replace Miss Marian A. King

CORNWELLS DEPOSITORS GET ANOTHER PAYMENT

A Total of 62% Has Now Been Returned To Depositors

TOTAL PAID OF $153,892

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 1.—Depositors in the Cornwells State Bank have received checks for 12 per cent. payment on their deposits in the Cornwells State Bank which was closed by orders of the State Banking Department in December, 1931. With this payment a total of 62 per cent. has been returned to the depositors by the State Banking Department.

Accompanying the checks was a statement from William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, giving the following summary, showing the recoveries for depositors, and the assets remaining to meet the balance still due at the last accounting:

This bank owed depositors at closing, net of offsets allowed and reserved for, $247,746.09; it has made advance payments totaling, 50%, $124,242.77; payment herewith, 12%, $29,649.72; total, $153,892.49; leaving a balance still due depositors of $93,853.60.

To meet this balance it had on hand on January 27, 1934, assets appraised as follows: Cash on hand and in banks, $9,947.70; loans to be collected from firms and individuals, $31,276.57; investments in stocks, bonds, and mortgages to be liquidated as markets are available, $45,695.84; real estate, including banking house, to be liquidated as markets are available, $8,000.00; miscellaneous, including furniture and fixtures and other assets, $2,675.83; total, $97,595.94. Deduct—loan from Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $14,331.29, and additional cash required for this dividend, $15,318.43, total $29,649.72; Excess of assets at appraised values, $67,946.22.

Although we have been operating during a period of unprecedented economic conditions, we have been able to liquidate seventy-one per cent. (71%) of loans, seventy-six per cent. (76%) of securities and fifty-one per cent. (51%) of mortgages, and with a total gain in conversion of $3,566.41. It is worthy of notice that this liquidation has been conducted economically for depositors for, during the period ended January 27, 1934, the net cost was less than nine-tenths of one cent per dollar collected, and the cost to each depositor was less than three-fifths of one cent for each dollar of his deposit, or less than three-tenths of one cent per deposit dollar per annum.

These results have been possible only because of the orderly and businesslike plan of liquidation followed. Ruthless dumping of assets has been avoided. Amortization of loans has been permitted for worthy debtors. There have been no relentless foreclosures with a further destruction of real estate values of home owners and for going banks, as well as those in possession of the Secretary. The same careful policy has been pursued with respect to securities.

My judgment has been supported by the advice of outstanding bankers, business and professional men who were appointed members of Realization Corporations in five districts of the Commonwealth, and who serve without compensation.

The Department of Banking already has made collections of $143,643.16 through liquidation of the assets of banks in possession, which have enabled it to pay off Bills Payable of $49,993,078.00 and secured and preferred claims of $9,923,064.00 owed by these banks, in addition to dividends distributed and in process of distribution totaling $83,727,018.28, involving

THE WASHINGTON PARADE

Roosevelt's Advisers Are Trying To Push General Johnson Out

ARE SCREAMING LOUDLY

If Johnson Goes It Looks Like Hard Winter For Miss Robinson

By Karl M. Kahn
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1934 by I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(INS)—September isn't pushing August out of 1934's calendar any more certainly than Mr. Roosevelt's advisers are trying to push Gen. Hugh S. Johnson out of the President's official family.

I can't find anyone, and neither can you, in the administration's inner circle who isn't suggesting to the gentleman in the White House that he get rid of the gentleman who has the best room in the Hotel Blue Eagle.

As for those potent persons who have no official stake in the New Deal, but whose kibitzing has its effect on the play of the cards, they are screaming more loudly for the General's retirement than a Washington taxi driver screaming in murderous outrage because he fails to hit you after he comes around a corner on two wheels.

The frost is on the Johnson pumpkin and those with a weather eye say the harvest is at hand.

If Johnson goes, it looks like a long, hard winter in government service for dark-haired, dark-eyed, plumpish, 36,800-year Frances M. Robinson, who is listed in the congressional directory as assistant to the administrator, but who is as close to the General in the NRA set-up as ham is to eggs on your breakfast platter.

If the wind ever blows hard enough to rip the Blue Eagle's nest to shreds he public is going to see the highest development in this administration of the power behind the throne theme.

It will see, among other things, how "Robbie" has erected herself as a barrier between Gen. Johnson and his associates and subordinates, and industry and labor.

It will see the amazing spectacle of a woman who has filtered through her emotions and her personal likes and dislikes the facts which those who sought to see the General, but didn't because "Robbie" wouldn't let them, brought to his office and left with her.

It will see $100,000-a-year business men, serving in the NRA as deputy administrators, trying to see Johnson but unable to because "Robbie" says "No."

It will see a powerful group, representing the workers in a powerful industry threatened with a strike, denied "Robbie's" permission to see the General, and hear her demanding, "what right have they to strike?"

It will see and hear so much that, unless I miss my guess, there won't be any Blue Eagle to reorganize. The bird can then be tossed to a taxidermist, stuffed and mounted as a reminder.

FIVE KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES DURING STORM

One Woman Among the Victims; All Are Badly Burned

NR. OREGON, MISSOURI

OREGON, Mo., Sept. 1.—(INS)—Five victims of a night-time tragedy of the air lanes, one of them a woman, lay dead here today following the crash of a tri-motor Rapid Air Transport plane in a violent rainstorm.

All but one of the dead were burned almost beyond recognition when the passenger liner careened across a highway, struck a steep embankment and burst into flames. The plane was bound from Kansas City to Omaha.

The dead: Mrs. Harry Schiffmacker, Edwardsville, Kas.; Pilot C. M. Bontrager, Kansas City; W. A. Truelson, Omaha; Dallas Leutch, Omaha; Frank Mahan, Kansas City.

John Hornecker, on whose farm the crash occurred, said the plane circled at an extremely low altitude, the pilot apparently searching for an emergency field on which to land in the rain, Hornecker said.

The ship swung in over county highway to land, but one wing struck a row of trees and the transport plane struck the embankment and immediately caught fire.

Intense heat prevented rescuers from recovering the four bodies. Farmers found the body of Truelson several yards from the wreckage where he had been thrown by the impact of the crash.

H. Stitt, traffic manager of the airline, said Pilot Bontrager had been in constant radio communication with the airport at Kansas City prior to the crash and signalled that he was going to attempt a landing.

Cornwells Heights Man To Inherit Part of Estate

(Special to the Courier)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Adolph Reif, of Cornwells Heights, will eventually inherit approximately $7,470 from the estate of his uncle, the late Isidor Reif, of this city, according to the findings of the New York State Transfer Tax Department report filed here today.

Mr. Reif, who died here January 20th, 1933, left an estate appraised today at $99,280 gross value and $93,742 net. A sister and brother of the testator, Bertha Roth of Brooklyn, and Sigmund Reif of Vienna, Austria, inherit life estates in one-half the residue each. At their deaths, Adolph Reif will receive a twelfth of the trust fund. The Huguenot Trust Co. is the administrator of the estate.

TWO NAVY DESTROYERS TO PAY TRENTON A VISIT

Part of First Annual Navy Week Celebration At New Jersey Capital

EXPECT MANY VISITORS

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 1.—Trenton will be signally honored when it celebrates its First Annual Navy Week commencing today and continuing through Tuesday. A representation of two Navy destroyers has already been assured and a third is tentatively promised.

Commander L. A. Davidson, of Destroyer Division Nine of the Battle Fleet, will lead the convoy of sleek vessels in the flagship of the division, the U. S. S. Lawrence. The U. S. S. Reuben James will accompany her and possibly the U. S. S. Trever, which visited the Port at the State Capital last month, will be asked to return.

In anticipation of unprecedented interest in the occasion, a program packed with daily rounds of activities and entertainment for officers and enlisted men aboard the ships has been arranged by a committee selected by City Commissioner Bernard J. Walsh, Director of the Port.

When the Navy's battle units steam up the Delaware River Saturday, crowds are expected to line the shores of communities between Philadelphia and Trenton on both sides of the river to shout a cheery welcome. Commissioner Walsh has asked that factory whistles be blown in greeting to the

Find Lifeless Body of New-Born Baby, Morrisville

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 1.—The lifeless body of a new-born baby was found at the gravel plant of Curtis and Hill, near here yesterday.

The body was found by Gus Mallet, of 13 Second street, Trenton, N. J., who was looking for junk. The infant was wrapped in a red and blue blanket.

Mallet notified Lester F. Ranson, Langhorne, R. F. D., an employee of the Philadelphia Electric Company, who was in the vicinity at the time, and Ranson in turn notified the State Highway Patrolmen at South Langhorne. The county coroner was notified.

Investigate Crash of Two Trains; One Dead, 35 Hurt

CRUGERS, N. Y., Sept. 1.—(INS)—Police and New York Central Railroad detectives today were investigating the crash of two crack trains here late last night which resulted in the death of one person and injuries to 35 others.

The Montreal, fast New York to Montreal express, crashed into the rear of a train bound for Lake Placid directly in front of the local station shortly before midnight.

James J. Tracy, of Brooklyn, a brakeman, was killed. He is said to have been riding on the rear platform of the Lake Placid train.

Many of the passengers in the sleeping cars of the two trains were thrown from their berths and cut and bruised. Most of their injuries resulted from flying glass from broken windows.

Michael Cummings, engineer of the second train, received only bruises from the crash, it was reported, although his engine was derailed in the impact.

There were many conflicting stories as to what caused the wreck. One report blamed it on an open switch, but this was immediately denied by railroad men. Another story attributed the crash to a dense fog which lay over the metropolitan area.

The number represented considerably more than 50 per cent of the Prussian "protection prisoners."

"RAINBOW" IS SELECTED

Newport, R. I., Sept. 1.—"Rainbow," belonging to a syndicate of 17 millionaires, has been selected to defend the America's Cup, against the 15th and latest challenger, T. O. N. Sopwith's blue-bullied "Endeavour."

The announcement came from George A. Carmack, secretary of the New York Yacht Club, last night, when the steam yacht, "Corsair," belonging to J. P. Morgan, and carrying the America's Cup committee aboard, returned from the final race of a trial series in the closest race witnessed in many a year.

"Yankee" made a glorious effort for Charles Francis Adams, her skipper, even though hope of the Boston "Hub" did lose its chance.

AWAIT MOVE IN RELIEF DEADLOCK

Harrisburg, Sept. 1.—Thousands of indigent families today awaited Governor Pinchot's next move in the deadlock over relief.

Funds are on hand to continue direct relief in Pennsylvania for another week, according to Eric H. Biddle, state emergency relief director. At that time relief coffers will be bare, unless H. L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, steps into the breach.

Hopkins at the New York relief conference that ended in a stalemate yesterday, notified the Governor that federal relief funds would not be made available again until he has "evidence of action on the part of the state."

Convocation of a special session of the Legislature to deal with relief problems would be sufficient "evidence," Hopkins explained.

Biddle said there were more than 300,000 families, roughly between 1,250,000 and 1,300,000 persons, on relief rolls at the present time. To feed and clothe them through the winter months and until the next regular session of the Legislature convenes, would require between 40 and 50 million dollars, he estimated.

CONSUMMATE PURCHASE OF AIRCRAFT PLANT HERE

Expect To Be Operating By October 1st With Small Force of Men

TO EMPLOY ABOUT 25

The sale of the plant of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation here to Fleetwings Incorporated has been consummated, according to word received from New York today. Papers in the transaction have been signed and deeds delivered on Thursday afternoon.

In speaking of the proposed plans of the company an official today said: "We expect to be in operation in Bristol on or about October 1st. The purchase of the plant has been consummated."

It was further stated that the corporation will bring to Bristol a few "key" men but what other men are to be employed will be selected from the available help in Bristol. "We hope to employ as many Bristol men as possible," said the official.

Operations will be started on a very small scale at first and possibly only 25 men will be employed. The company has some government work to complete and this work will be finished here.

The company is planning to expand and will also do considerable research work in the use of stainless steel to be used in airplane construction.

DRIVE TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS HERE DURING SEPTEMBER

Burgess Clifford L. Anderson Urges All to Join In The Move

CHILDREN IN DANGER

Superintendent McGee Calls Attention to Carelessness of Children

A determined effort is being made to make the month of September one free of accidents in Bristol.

This move is in conformity with a similar move throughout the United States and is a part of a gigantic safety drive.

Burgess Clifford L. Anderson issues a special appeal to the residents of this section and Superintendent of Public Safety, James L. McGee, calls attention to some of the hazards on the public highways here.

"Roller skating on the public highways and children playing with various types of conveyances, often of amateur design, on the streets are two very serious violations of the rules of public safety," states Superintendent McGee.

"Numerous complaints have been received about children roller skating and playing on the streets."

Police will make a drive to rid the streets of these dangers. In his appeal for a month free of accidents, Burgess Anderson says: "Throughout the United States last year 30,500 persons were killed and more than 800,000 were injured in automobile accidents. Such a casualty record is certainly staggering, but present indications are that the record this year will be even worse—36,000 deaths and more than one million persons injured."

MOB CREATES FLOOD

Calcutta, Sept. 1.—Attempts of a rioting mob to inundate the Sran district by releasing flood waters of the Ganges River resulted in two deaths today.

Police fired upon a group attempting to cut the railway embankment along the river, killing two and seriously wounding a third.

Meanwhile the flood reached the stage of a major disaster. Reports from Chapra said that more than 700 small villages have been washed away.

SMALL FIRE

A fire, said to be of incendiary origin, occurred at the small storehouse of Spencer & Sons, furniture dealers, on Bath street, this morning. Damage was estimated at $50. The frame building was damaged, but no damage was done to the contents. Consolidated Fire Department answered the alarm.

ROBBED OF $50

A thief or thieves, gaining an entrance into the store of Anthony Accardi, 301 Walnut street, during the night, made off with the cash register. The register was found this morning in the Accardi garage, with $50 missing. Entrance was gained by breaking open a window of the store. The theft is believed to have occurred between 11 p. m., and three a. m. Bristol police were notified.

MRS. H. BUTLER DIES

Mrs. Birdie Butler, 39, wife of Henry Butler, died suddenly at her home, 725 Cedar street, early this morning. Survivors include her husband; one son, Henry, Jr.; and a daughter, Nancy. The Rev. Mims, pastor of Bethel A. M. E. Church, will officiate at the funeral service at the Bethel Church, Wood street, tomorrow at two p. m. Interment will be made in Eden Cemetery, Eden, Ga. The H. S. TIE-TOEING THROUGH THE RAIN-DROPS

(By "The Stroller")

Was it the Jersey Devil or Mahatma Gandhi that startled residents of the sixth ward gazed upon during the early hours the other morning? It was raining and the apparition appeared on a lawn near the West Circle. Its flowing white robes blew from beneath a black umbrella as the rain pelted down.

After much speculation and inquiry among residents in the vicinity it was discovered that it was merely an obliging neighbor who had hastily aroused from his slumbers, and in sleeping garb and with an umbrella to protect him from the rain, was bound for an adjacent property to close the windows.

LIVING STANDARD STILL HIGH

It might not be a bad idea for Americans, while suffering many privations as result of the depression, to remember that conditions could be far worse than they now are or have been.

The suggestion is advanced by a Cleveland business man, William Feather, who recently returned from a visit to Europe during which he observed conditions on that side of the Atlantic as compared to those in the United States. He found that, despite the depression, "this country is living on a plane that Europe will be lucky to reach in another generation."

Although conditions in England are better than on the continent, even there, he said, "the plain people do not know, as they never have known, a living standard comparable to what we find here after five years of devastating depression."

There is much hardship in the United States—real suffering by great numbers of persons. But the living standard here still is high compared to that of the less fortunate peoples of other lands.

That it has withstood the greatest shock it ever experienced seems to be very good evidence that it is not in danger of being wrecked.

It is well to think that things might be much worse than they are or have been, but it is better to believe that they soon will be on a level with the best in years past and even considerably higher.

HE MAY GO TOO FAR

Huey Long seems to be afraid that some of the acts of the recent special session of the legislature which made him virtually dictator of the state may be declared unconstitutional by the courts.

To get around this possibility, it is reported that he is planning to have Governor Allen, his chief lieutenant, call another extra session for the purpose of impeaching judges.

Should the reported plan be carried out, the "kingfish" would have virtually a free hand in running the state as he saw fit. By the legislation recently enacted at his command the state election machinery is placed in the hands of the governor.

The present executive is completely controlled by Long, which means that the latter virtually is governor and has dictatorial powers. Why Louisiana citizens have permitted themselves to be so victimized by a demagogic politician is something the rest of the country is unable to understand. The "kingfish" some day may find that he has gone a little too far. An attempt to wreck the state's courts easily might prove the last straw.

It is hard to believe that Louisiana men will permit this. You can't expect really good times until wages are high enough to buy things people don't need.

The only way to keep from being annoyed by a howling dog is to own it.

One wonders, if Admiral Byrd, too, wrote: "Having a fine time, wish you were here."

Maybe a lie is never justified, but you hate to say: "It's none of your business."

BLOW KILLS EAGLE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., (INS)—A boy's baseball bat probably saved John H. Williams from serious injury here in a thrilling battle with a big golden eagle. Williams heard a commotion at the back of his home and on investigation found that an eagle was tearing at the wire netting covering a chicken house. When he tried to frighten the eagle away it attacked him viciously with beak and talons. Luckily Williams was able to grab a boy's baseball bat which was lying on the ground and broke the bird's back.

Who Owns Death Valley?—Scotty Wants to Know

Walter Scott, better known to the world as Death Valley Scotty, the picturesque prince of the wastelands of Death Valley, Cal., has dropped once again into the nation's limelight—this time demanding settlement of the question: "Who owns Death Valley?" Scotty, who claims ownership of a $2,500,000 castle in the valley, declares that it will be up to President Roosevelt to settle.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXIII

In the Stuart home there was grave concern for Caroline. "They don't eat right, I know they don't," Mrs. Stuart declared in futile protest to Malcolm. "That poor woman will never be a housekeeper. It just isn't in her and I guess she can't help it, the poor thing."

"I guess you're right, Ma," Malcolm returned in a troubled voice. "I've noticed that Caroline's lunches are pretty skimpy."

"I'll put them up for her," "She wouldn't stand for it. But you can slip an extra goody for her into mine. Something kind of dainty. I'll say you've gone flossy on me and I don't want to hurt your feelings by telling you I can't eat the stuff."

Scheming in this way they afforded Caroline the only food she got that tempted her appetite. She had tried whenever she had a moment to spare to stir some housewifely pride in her mother's bosom, but Alva hated it. Caroline bought books on food and diet for her. Alva said they bored her, and continued to feed her family badly.

Caroline was a pale waif of a girl by the end of August. She was learning what she could at the factory, acquiring knowledge at the university, but there was no satisfaction in doing either.

She had, in sheer need of finding new interests, attempted to form a social club among the workers she had met. But the girls shied away from her. They did not dislike her, but she was not popular. Because of her difference she was strange to them. They felt self-conscious, awkward in her presence. They knew nothing about her and it seemed queer to them that a girl could be so close-mouthed about herself. They shared their confidences, sometimes openly, talked freely of their boy friends, their "makes," their rows, their hard luck, their good times, their parents' "buttin' in," their illnesses, anything and everything that directly concerned their lives.

Some among them tried to pump Malcolm, but he would answer them with such a ridiculous story—always different—that finally they were discouraged in their curiosity. They grew used to Caroline, ceased to wonder about her and she was left to her silence, her work, and Malcolm.

Caroline was feeling one evening when she came home that she hadn't a friend in the world aside from him. Neither, it seemed, had her mother or father. It caught her by surprise to see, when she opened the front door, that they had company.

The caller was a woman who had never before been inside Alva's house. She was one of those whom Mrs. Rutledge had refused to see. But the woman was not thinking now of how Mrs. Wade had turned her back at the door with the information that "the madam" was laying down and didn't want to be bothered.

It was Alva who opened the door to her today, and invited her in. The woman had asked if she might use the telephone—not if there was one in the house. Alva had noted, and surmised that her neighbors knew more of her house and its contents than she did of theirs.

She had hesitated, uncertain whether this might be setting a precedent she should not care to have established. "I'm Mrs. Barnes," the woman had said. "We haven't got a phone. Mrs. Rutledge and I want to call Dr. Shultz. My little girl's sick and I don't know what's the matter with her."

Alva had shown her to the telephone and when the mother had put in the call she asked about the sick child. "She's got a fever, I'm afraid," Mrs. Barnes said, "she's been getting hotter all day, and her head aches. I thought she was just tired from over-doing maybe on that camping trip. She's been away for a few weeks, up at Clayford Forks. Ever since she's been home she hasn't seemed to feel like lifting her hand."

Alva remembered something she had read in the news. A report of an outbreak of typhoid in a workmen's camp near Clayford Forks where a bridge was under construction. The men had been drinking spring water, which the health authorities claimed was polluted. The heavy rains which had followed the prolonged dry spell had washed contaminated soil into the spring, they said, and warned the public against drinking from unprotected springs or streams.

Alva knew nothing of the symptoms of typhoid except that one of the earliest is lassitude, and she feared to alarm the mother by speaking of what she had read, but the thought of a typhoid epidemic in South Town was appalling. It was, she knew, a disease requiring stricter supervision of sanitary conditions, and try to find a position you needn't be ashamed of?" Caroline answered with patient weariness. "I'm not ashamed. And it would take more energy to look for a new job than it does to do my work at the factory."

"Well, then, give up studying at night. It's ruining your health. And it's getting you nowhere."

Caroline shrugged. "Perhaps not, but it's something to do." "Look here," her father broke in, "you boasted to me once that your friends weren't all social registers. Can't you find some among them who would stoop to Edge Street for old time's sake? It would give you something to do to have a few people around."

The steady, knowing, stare with ditions than was likely to develop in the community. She decided to appeal to Dr. Shultz for his diagnosis of the child's illness.

The girls shied away from Caroline. They did not dislike her but she was not popular.

The doctor would be there in half an hour, Mrs. Barnes said, preparing to leave. "I'll have to be going and get some fresh sheets ironed," she smiled apologetically. "Had them all in the wash today, except those on the beds, of course, and Lillie's look terrible—she's been that fretful, tossing and turning."

"Do let me save you that trouble," Alva urged. "I have an extra supply."

She went upstairs to get the linen. Mrs. Barnes waited. Caroline arrived just as her mother came down. Introductions were short and Caroline did not learn until her neighbor was gone why her mother was giving her an armful of linen.

"It's typhoid, I'm afraid," Alva said. "I'm going to telephone Dr. Shultz later. If it is typhoid we have a right to know it."

Philip came in, and heard the story. "You're jumping to conclusions," he said crossly. "Let's worry about our own affairs."

"You mean the empty case in the cellar, I suppose," Alva retorted. "Well, you can't deny that an appetizer improves a poor dinner," he answered.

Caroline left them. Their growing tendency to bicker with each other was something she could not endure.

which Caroline regarded him caused him a measure of uneasiness. He understood her silent protest that parties cost money, and they had none for that purpose.

"Don't you see any of your former friends at the university?" her mother asked.

"I avoid them," Caroline said bluntly.

"Well," Alva sighed, and turned to other matters. "I wish you would run down to the store and get some ice cream for dessert."

"What—more of that cornstarch mess?" Mr. Rutledge exclaimed. "You may have melon if you like," Alva said icily. But there was no melon, she discovered, and remembered that she had forgotten to put it on her shopping list.

Caroline walked to the store. It was on the next street, not far. On her way she passed the Barnes's house and stopped to inquire about their little girl. She knew the child slightly, a small, elfish creature with long black curls and big black eyes, skipping her rope up and down the street early and late. Caroline had pitied her in the hot weather for the discomfort the heavy hair must cause her.

A woman Caroline did not know answered her ring. When the door was opened she could hear Mrs. Barnes crying as she talked with someone in the living room. Caroline was not going in, but Mrs. Barnes called to her when she heard her voice.

The doctor's afraid it's fever—typhoid," the woman who admitted her explained to Caroline. "He said something about a . . . a serum reaction . . . whatever that is."

such as one grey angora suit, with a turquoise blue and brown belt and scarf. Another novelty was the employment of different knitting stitches for the sleeves, thus making them different in appearance, such as one charming brown suit, the skirt and sleeves of which were ribbed, the rest being smoothly knitted. A red belt and four big red buttons down the front of the bodice gave a touch of color.

Another charming suit was in bottle green, the short jacket of which was edged with closely placed knitted balls. The bodice was beige outlined with bands of rust brown and green. The black silk knitted evening gown had a basque bodice, a long skirt with slips and a plaited gold leather belt.

Red Cross Public Health
Nurse Completes Training

Less familiar only than the Red Cross Nurse at the battle front, because she is a newer factor in the Red Cross program, is the Red Cross public health nurse. Her training is of the same high standard as that of the nurses who go to war; but her first responsibility is that of caring for those who are sick at home, of helping to prevent disease through all the agencies modern medical science has at its command.

Responsibilities of special importance are laid on the shoulders of public health nurses at this time. Social service case work is not supposed to be one of her duties; yet no nurse on active duty today, in city, country or frontier post, can close her eyes to the present necessities of case work. Particularly is this true of Red Cross public health nurses in suburban and rural areas, where often the Red Cross is the only welfare agency. Since our figures show that of some 540 public health nursing services administered today by our organization 60 per cent are outside the cities, it is particularly important that each community pay serious attention to the question of whether the nurse who daily faces the challenge of so many serious needs is getting the public support that is her due.

During the last few years there has been with the Red Cross as with other health agencies some decrease in funds, and therefore in services available to the people through the public health nursing program. However, our loss has been relatively small, due, without doubt, to the excellence of our chapter organizations, and to the indomitable spirit of the nurses themselves. Some of them remained at their post even though their salaries had to be reduced below the subsistence point. Some of them continued on faith alone—two of them being obliged to eat their meals at the county poorhouse because the county was forced to default on salaries because of the bank closings of 1933.

"We are needed here," seemed to be their cheerful attitude; and when they brought that sort of spirit to their work it is small wonder that many communities and Red Cross chapters refused to give up this phase of their work.

"Cut out anything else, but let us keep our nurse," was their cry. Some nurses who had no private means and found no poorhouse where they could eat had to be dropped from the roster of workers last year. More would have had to go if it had not been for the generosity of the Scottish Rite Masons, who gave $10,000 and later added $5,000 to their gift, and of Will Rogers, philosopher-humorist, a life member of the Red Cross, who gave $25,000. This gift was made with the stipulation that it should aid any services which were in danger of lapsing for lack of funds.

Both sums were allocated to public

HUNGARIAN WAR RELICS

MOSCOW. — (INS) — Hungarian relics of the Freedom War of '48 have been identified in the famous museum of the Trars and include the last documents and exhibits taken from Hungary. The relics consist of correspondence between the Hungarian patriot Rakoczi and Peter the Great, with fifty-two flags which the Russians captured from the armies of Gorgey and Bem in 1849. The flags which are in good state of preservation are of heavy silk and show a picture of the Virgin and the emblems of Hungary. A picture showing the surrender of the Hungarians at Vilagos was also found in the museum, and is stated to have been painted HUBBS—At Woodbury, N. J., August 30, 1934, Emma E. Keeling, wife of Maurice G. Hubbs, formerly of Bristol. Relatives and friends, also Morning Star Chapter, 355, Order of the Eastern Star, are invited to the funeral services from the Funeral Home of the H. S. Rue Estate, 314 Cedar street, Monday, September 3, at one p. m. Interment in Oakland Cemetery, Philadelphia. Friends may call Sunday evening.

In Memoriam

McFADDEN—In loving remembrance of our kind and devoted brother, Michael Francis, who passed away September 1, 1933.

It must be sweet, O thou my dear to lie
With hands that folded are from every task,
Sealed with the seal of that great mystery
The lips that nothing answer, nothing ask,
The life-long struggle ended; ended quite
The weariness of patience and of pain,
And the eyes closed, to open no again,
On desolate dawn or dreariness of night,
It must be sweet to slumber and forget,
To have the poor tired heart so still at last;
Done with all yearning, done with all regret,
Doubt, fear, hope, sorrow, all forever past—
Past all the hours, or slow of wing or fleet—
It must be sweet, it must be very sweet.

HARRIMAN NO-NAMES TO PLAY J. A. C. MONDAY

Monday, Labor Day, afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on Leedom's field the Harriman No-Names, first-half champions of the Bristol Junior League, will meet the Jefferson A. C., second-half champions of the same league, in the second game of their series for the supremacy of the mentioned league.

The first game being played Wednesday night and won by J. A. C., 10-3, was called after five innings of play because of darkness, so it was decided to play the other games in the afternoon when nine innings can be played to give both teams a better chance.

The "Mules" are out to win this game and the series, while on the other hand the No-Names are determined that the "Mules" are not going to walk over them and are set to even the series with the "Jeffs" and stay in the series.

The No-Names' most likely pitcher will be either "Lefty" Capriotti, the southpaw twirler of the Harriman boys, or "Louie" Foell, right hand flinger, while the "Mules" can afford to use "Spike" Naylor, who pitched a three-hit game the last time out against the White Elephants, and hopes to repeat against Harriman.

The "Mules" line-up will remain the same, while the No-Names line-up will be completely changed.

Here are the probable line-ups of both teams for Monday, with their series averages.

STATE NEWS

ERIE — (INS) — Erie city officials are preparing to carry their fight for municipally owned and operated utilities into the legislative halls at Harrisburg during the coming sessions.

Backing them are the supporters in other Pennsylvania communities who voted "yes" at the recent third class cities league convention on a program favoring the utility change.

With the appointment soon of the league's legislative committee, a bill will be drafted which will permit municipally owned plants to sell electric power to domestic consumers.

Introduction of this bill at the next legislative session, Park Director Edward Allen announced, will be but the beginning of a fight for more equitable adjustment of rates now charged by local utilities and eventual establishment of the city's own power plants.

"If the legislature takes favorable action on the proposed bills," Allen stated, "then it will be a matter for the Erie electorate to decide whether or not Erie is to have a municipally owned plant."

MOVIE COURSE AT U. S. C.

LOS ANGELES — (INS) — Up-to-the-minute university classes in cinematographic acting and expression, sound recording, radio script writing, gold mining, and the application of modern fashions to individual personalities as well as in the more familiar college subjects ranging from archaeology to zoology are scheduled for the fall quarter of University College, downtown evening division of the University of Southern California which opens September 24.

HEN LAYS TWIN EGGS

SALEM, N. H. — (INS) — Jealous probably of the widespread publicity given the NRA blue eagle, "Toovie," a seven-pound Rhode Island Red hen, owned by Arthur E. Atkinson of North Andover, is stealing the limelight by its feat of laying two eggs simultaneously. The eggs laid by "Toovie" have heavier and thicker whites than those of ordinary eggs and the shells are more pear-shaped than the conventional oval.

Drive To Prevent Accidents Here During September

must be made to convince the public that careful use of the streets and highways must at all times prevail.

To this end, more than a majority of the States of the country are co-operating in September in a concerted program of street and highway safety. The effort should merit the active support of all. As the burgess of Bristol, I am glad to have the opportunity to enlist all proper municipal agencies in the September undertaking.

When it is recognized that the vast majority of all automobile accidents result from carelessness or recklessness, it must be admitted that a great many automobile accidents, with their serious consequences, could be prevented if motorists simply drove a little more slowly, if pedestrians were to take more time to safeguard their own lives, and if adults were to keep constantly in mind the fact that children are likely to run out into the streets and must, therefore, be protected to the greatest possible extent.

Everyone knows that careless acts occur daily upon our streets. Everyone knows further that drivers and pedestrians could put a stop to many careless acts if they simply made up their minds to do so. I hope, therefore, that as a demonstration of the fact that most automobile accidents are unnecessary, the people of this community will pledge themselves to a more careful use of the streets and highways.

Children will be returning to school in September and, therefore, extra precaution on the part of motorists is necessary. It would be helpful if the schools were to devote some time during the month to safety instruction. Many civic organizations during the month may find it possible to give some time to a consideration of the automobile accident problem. The support of the churches would be invaluable, and I know that the press can be counted upon to continue its efforts to bring about a safer use of our public thoroughfares. Every person and every organization should be more than willing to cooperate in the country-wide September program of street and highway safety.

sailors as their craft pass towns on the way to Trenton shortly after noon Saturday.

Highlights of the activities planned by the general committee, which is headed by Arthur W. Dover, Port Manager of Trenton, include a parade of military units, civic associations, Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts, Girl Scouts, fraternal organizations and city and State officials on Labor Day. Following the parade, a public welcome to Uncle Sam's Tars will be given at the War Memorial Building in Trenton.

An invitation has been extended by Commissioner Walsh to the public at large to inspect the war craft while the ships are docked at Trenton Marine Terminal on Sunday and Monday. Special arrangements are available through Port Manager Dover, whereby school children, accompanied by adults, may go aboard the ships either in groups or as families.

Yachts and other pleasure craft from Trenton will add color to the welcome by journeying part way down the river to meet the Naval visitors and form an escort into port. Boat owners at Bordentown, Burlington, Bristol, Riverside and Camden are urged to join in this part of the greetings to the newcomers to the Delaware's waters.

Prominent persons in official, industrial and civic walks of life from Trenton and nearby communities will take part in the ceremonies attending the arrival of the Navy men at the Marine Terminal in Trenton Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Among them will be Hon. George B. LaBarre, Mayor of Trenton, Commissioner Walsh, Hon. Joseph S. Hoff, Mayor of Princeton; Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, Mayor of Morrisville; Brigadier General T. D. Landon, head of Bordentown Military Institute; Col. John H. McCullough, Col. E. C. Rose and Col. Ed-tional Guard.

An additional room will be required at St. Ann's Parochial School, for the 1934-35 term, with the commencement of a new class, the tenth grade.

Heretofore there have been nine classes, eight in the grades, and one high school class. Starting with this year there will be one additional high school class, the tenth. Another room at the school structure is being renovated to care for these students. This class will be a commercial one, the same as the ninth.

Ten Sisters will have charge of instruction in the grades; with two in the high school, making a teaching staff of 12 in all.

School sessions will open on Tuesday, September 4th.

The school building is modernly equipped to care for the students' needs, and the structure meets with state requirements.

The entire faculty of Hulmeville-Middletown public school will return this Fall to take up duties for the 1934-35 term.

Lynn Schatzer will resume his duties as principal, and teacher of the seventh and eighth grades. Miss Elizabeth Cupitt will again have charge of students in the fifth and sixth grades; Miss Margaret Perry, third and fourth; and Miss Anna MacCorkle, first and second.

Some repairs have been made in the school structure, these including the laying of a new floor in the room on the first floor which houses the third and fourth grades, as well as a new floor in the side hall.

The building will be thoroughly cleaned in preparation for the opening of school on Tuesday, September 4th.

The enrollment is expected to be about the same as last year, with approximately 150 boys and girls in the eight grades.

tered the church, and Mr. Dennen sang "Ave Maria."

The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Roarty, sister of the groom; and the best man was Frank Ross, 2989 Aramingo avenue, Philadelphia, brother of the bride. The ushers were James and John Roarty, brothers of the groom.

The bride was attired in a gown of white bridal satin fashioned on princess lines. She wore white satin slippers. The bridal veil of tulle, the headpiece of which was made crown shape, was trimmed with seed pearls. The bride carried a prayer book.

Miss Roarty was attractive in a gown of powder blue crepe, fashioned on close-fitting lines. A large blue horse-hair hat with pale pink ribbon trimming, blue satin pumps, long white kid gloves, completed her costume, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremony a breakfast was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Frank Kruse, and 50 guests attended. Mr. and Mrs. Roarty are leaving today for a motor trip, and will reside in the Courier apartments, Beaver street. Mrs. Roarty travelled in a blue wool suit trimmed in brown, and wore brown accessories.

Guests attending the wedding from Bristol were: Mr. and Mrs. D. Roarty and family, A. Anderson, Pine street, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster and family, Beaver street.

Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Jinx?

By BURNLEY

BARNEY ROSS is not superstitious. If he were, he'd be worrying himself to a frazzle over his coming joust with Jimmy McLarnin, in which he will risk his welterweight laurels against the man he defeated for the crown last May.

You see, little Barney will be facing one of the most malevolent jinxes in pugilistic history when he climbs through the ropes at New York's Madison Square Garden Bowl next week. To be more precise, he will be confronted by a double jinx—a double-barrelled hoodoo, a twin hex, a sinister, hydra-headed Indian sign that has cast a malignant spell over a long line of title holders.

Let's look at the record. Four world's champions have defended their titles at the huge Long Island Bowl where Barney will put his gilded kelly on the block—and all four have lost their coveted crowns. Schmeling dropped the heavyweight diadem to Sharkey in the first fight at the Bowl. It was there that Primo Carnera took the laurels away from the Boston Bad Boy, and Carnera in his turn was relieved of the purple mantle when Max Baer stopped him at the same ill-fated

Yesterday and Today

WHO would want to go back to the standards of even a generation ago? We have traveled far since then. Inventions and scientific discoveries have furnished the principal vehicles: New conveniences, improved merchandise, better foods, added health-conserving means.

But the thing which has hastened us on to the knowledge and acceptance of their benefits is advertising. It has brought new things quickly to all of us and sped us toward a different, better mode of living.

Modern advertising sells us, not only things, but ideas. The advertising of soaps has sold us the health advantages of more frequent bathing. The advertising of modern bathroom equipment has made bathing a sinful pleasure.

The advertising of improved razors and beard softeners has made whisking off whiskers a simple daily ditty instead of a weekly major operation.

Tooth-paste, tooth-brush and mouth-wash manufacturers and retailers are saving us untold aches and years of marred smiles, by advertising the importance of oral hygiene.

As a result of the advertising of food manufacturers and purveyors, we have escaped from the drowsy dulness caused by heavy breakfasts and are full of forenoon vim and clear-headedness.

The clothes we wear, furniture we use, fuel we burn, car we drive, telephone we've installed—all these would not so quickly have come home to us, were it not for the silent but irresistible force of advertising.

Keep pace with the world you live in by reading the advertisements in this newspaper.
